Extract from the Civil Code-Law relating to Public Vaccination.

SECTION 309.—The Minister of the Interior shall appoint, upon the recommendation of the Board of Health a suitable person to be vaccinating officer in each of the guber natorial divisions of the kingdom, who shall receive such salary, as may, from time to time, be appropri-ated by the Legislature, and shall be removable from office at the pleasure of said Minister. SECTION 310 .- Each vaccinating officer shall appoint, a least, three convenient places in each school district throughout his division, for the performance of vac-cination; and, from time to time, give public notice of the time when he will attend at such places, to vaccinate all persons not already successfully vaccinated who may then and there appear; and also of the time when he will attend at such place to inspect the progress of such vaccination in the persons so vaccinated. SECTION 311.—The father or mother of every child shall, within six months after the birth of such child, or, in the event of the death, illness, or absence of the father or mother, then the guardian, nurse, or person having charge of such child, shall, within six months after its birth, or at the earliest opportunity after, take such child to the vaccinating officer, for the purpose of being vac-Section 312.—Upon the eighth day, following the day on which any child has been vaccinated, the father, mother, guardian, or other person having charge of said child, shall again take such child to the vaccinating officer, that he may ascertain by inspection the result of such operation. SECTION 313 .- If the vaccination is found to be successful, the officer shall deliver to the father, mother, or other person having charge of the child, free of charge, a certificate that the child has been successfully vac-cinated, and shall note the same in a book to be kept by such officer for that purpose. SECTION 314 .- On the presentation of any child to be vaccinated, should the officer deem the child to be in an unfit state to be vaccinated, he may postpone the opera-tion at his discretion, and give due notice to the parents, or person having charge of such child, to reproduce the same for vaccination at a future time.

Section 315.—The vaccinating officers shall visit the several stations appointed by them, at least once in every six months, and oftener, if required so to do by the Minister of the Interior, or Board of Health. Section 316.—Every parent, guardian, or other person having the charge of any child, who shall refuse or neglect to comply with the provisions of the law respecting vaccination, shall be subject to a fine of five dollars; one-half of which shall be paid to the informer. SECTION 317 .- The several vaccinating officers shall keep a faithful record of their transactions, and make an annual report of the same to the Minister of the Interior. H. A. P. CARTER, Minister of the Interior.

BON VOYAGE.

King Kalakaua who left us on Thursday for a ourney round the world carries with him our pearty Alona and that of all his subjects. During the seven years since his accession to the Hawaiian Throne he bas, by his character as a Ruler, justly won the affections of his people. Nothing is more certain than that His Majesty will not meet any potentate during his visit to Europe of whom such a statement can be more truly made. GOD SAVE THE KING.

HIS MAJESTY KING KALAKAUA, Whose Kingdom comprises the Hawaiian Archipelago; also Palmyra, Cornwallis, and other islands of the central Pacific, ascended the Throne, February 12, 1874, and is the eventh Hawaiian monarch, since Kamenameha the Conqueror organized the Kingdom. King KALAKAUA is now in the forty-fourth year of his age, and in the seventh of his reign. His Majesty received an excellent scholastic education in the Royal School, superintended by Mr. and Mrs. Cooke of the American Mission. in company with the late Kings Kamehameha IV. and V., King Lunalilo, Her Majesty Queen Dowager Emma, and other Princes and Princesses of the Kingdom. On leaving school, the young Prince DAVID KALAKAUA was trained in military exercises. He received a commission as lieutenant of the King's Guard in 1852, was promoted Captain and Major on accession of Kamehameha IV., and became Colonel and Chief of Staff, under Kamehameha V. His Majesty also filled the positions of Military Secretary and Lord Chamberlain, during the reigns of Kamehameha IV. and V. He was also member of the Privy Council of State, and hereditary Noble, or Alii of the House of Nobles. He ascended the Hawaiian Throne on the demise of King Lunalilo, in 1874; His Majesty speaks the English language with perfect purity, and has the style and manner of a highly cultivated gentleman. His Majesty is a very diligent student, and has studiously perused the work of Darwin, Huxley, Haeckel, and other modern thinkers of great eminence; and as his tastes are decidedly military, His Majesty has a collection of military works, remarkable for variety and extent. It comprises the works and biographies of all the notable Captains of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, and the principal modern works on artillery and engineering.

His Majesty, by invitation of the American Government, visited the United States in 1875. The Reciprocity Treaty, of mutual advantage to the two countries, was the result of the royal visit. His Majesty is a member of several royal orders of Europe. The High Chief KALAKAUA joined the Masonic fraternity in 1858; and His Majesty is now invested with the rank and insignia of the 33rd cegree, or highest rank of the mystic tween things as they are in this little Kingdom to-day, and the state of feeling which existed at the time when this journal passed into the hands of its present proprietor. At that time, the press of the Kingdom, native and foreign, was banded together in attack upon the King. A discourteous criticism was freely indulged in to bring him into disrespect, and if the tone of the press and the loud talk in certain quarters could have been accepted as the voice of the nation, no country could have appeared more ripe for revolt against its ruler. Those who had no sympathy with this sort of thing had no organ. They are, for the most part, men who take no part in political affairs or discussions, content to follow their avocations in peace in a kingdom whose institutions they respect and believe in. At this juncture we stepped in, determined that the voice of a minority, however loudly raised, should not be mistaken for that of the nation. The work we laid out for ourselves was to support the institutions of the country against the scarcely veiled attacks which threatened them; to support heartily, yet with a discriminating spirit, Professor Nichols, Professor Popovich, and other the King and his advisers; to set forth the truth of things in opposition to the garbled stories which were everywhere being circulated, to expound discriminatingly matters which had excited so much angry feeling; and to arouse into more demonstrative activity the spirit of loyalty to the King, which we knew to be wide-spread through the country, and as deep-seated in the breasts of the majority of our foreign as of our native population. We took up the pen none too soon, for the King and all his peaceably disposed subjects could not fail to view with alarm the excited condition of the exponents of an adverse sentinent which seemed likely to carry them to lengths, the fruit of which they would have bitterly to repent when too late. The King was made to feel that scowling faces surrounded him,-to doubt whether or no his Throne might be in danger-to believe that all his earnest projects for the welfare of his Kingdom and his People were about to be defeated, and the fruits of long years of constitutional government on the part of himself and his predecessors scattered to the winds. And we confidently say that our work was one of peace,-we came forward to speak the mind of that large but quietly disposed majority of the nation, which viewed with the greatest concern the angry feelings that had been raised Hew successfully, supported by the common sense and loyalty of the masses of the people, of the ADVERTISER have amply evidenced. The acceptance of our respectful suggestion that His Majesty should, before undertaking a journey abroad, visit the centres of population through- voice, and she and her sister, Miss Clarke, received out the Kingdom, has happily proved the means a hearty applause. of demonstrating the loyalty to the Throne and the affection for the King which pervades all classes throughout these Islands. The duty we undertook was taken up at a moment when it was evident that " the times were out of joint." Our reward is in the results, and we desire no

this port on January 19th, for Hongkong.

Address of Her Royal Highness, the Princess Regent.

At the Palace, on the morning of the departure of His Majesty :

Aliis, Officers, and Members of the King's Guard, the Prince's Own, Mamalahoa Corps, and all my people.

My royal brother, our beloved King, now leaves us, and I appeal to your love to your Sovereign Chief, to your genuine aloha alii, as true Hawaiians, that you will extend to me that love and obedience which you so willingly gave your King, to enable me to fulfill justly, and wisely the duties of Government that are placed in my hands; and recognize in me a mother, as I shall look upon you as my children. And I ask also in behalf of my beloved consort, the same love and obedience to accomplish the fulfilment of our joint trust. And I pray that with hearts united and true, you will supour country, in the advancement of a comthe desire I declare unto you-God bless | was arrived at. you all.

The Departure of His Majesty. The time of departure of the steamship "City Sydney" was fixed at 6 A.M., Thursday morning While it was yet dark, at 5 A.M., we found the wharf thronged with people, among whom were Ministers Nobles, and a representation from all ranks and races in the capital. When the hour of 6 had struck, it became known that the King would be on board at half-past 6, - and sharp on the minute His Majesty arrived, the band struck up, and the people shouted, and as His Majesty passed up the gangway, there sprang forth on both sides what seemed like a fringe of outstretched hands seeking a last touch of the hand of the departing Chief and Father. The hawsers were cast loose, the great ship moved on, the band pourth melodiously and tenderly, Home Sweot Home; a multitude of handkerchiefs on ship and shore fluttered in the air; and as the King was seen by the rail aft with his handkerchief to hi eyes, many were pressed to weeping eyes on shore as the great steamer moved grandly out to sea, with the royal standard at the main, which the guns of Punchbowl hailed with a royal roar.

WE are amused at our brother Gazette's serious discussion of the monarchical, political maxim, -the "King can do no wrong;" as an assertion of royal personal impeccability. The maxim is a recognized "legal fiction" that has nothing to do with the question of the common lot of man to err. We are glad that our younger brother so frankly confesses a sympathy with fellow sinners; and we fully appreciate that he | Jaluit, with his wife and child. She also takes would perfer, as he says, a Magdalen that home a Gilbert Island woman, who has on account can do wrong, to a saint that is not so of ill health been released by the lady to whom INSURANCE CASE .- A case of some interest to shipowners and to Insurance companies was heard jury. On the evening of the 6th June last, the crew of the "Eugenia M. Briggs." then moored Huelo bay, finding that the vessel made water faster than they could pump her out, abandoned her. Next morning the vessel was still riding a College met for the first time and the school was her moorings, and the crew went aboard and co her adrift for the purpose, as they allege, o and of railway iron. The vessel was insured by two policies, one of which ran " from Dec. 6th 187; to June 6th 1880." It was on the evening of the latter date that the vessel was abandoned by he crew, and it was on the seventh that they cut he adrift from her moorings. The action was agains the insurers under this policy, and they raised the delence, that it had expired before the abandonment. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiffs The mere fact that a crew, thinking their lives in danger, go ashore from a small vessel lying in an exposed bay, does not of itself constitute a legal abandonment of a vessel; and the subsequen action of the captain in taking possession of and voluntarily stranding the vessel, takes the affair entirely out of the category of abandonment. The voluntary stranding, if justifiable (which, under the circumstances, may be doubted,) was a "general average act" and claims arising under it can only be legally adjusted in acordance with the law of average.

Last Sun day, as the people were going to Church, I saw a native running with all speed. He met a lady, seemingly going to Church. She accompanied the native to a house situated in the taro patches. I waited for some hours to find out what was the matter, till by and by an old native informed me that the wife of kanaka had given birth to twins, girls; and both would have been dead but for this lady. She washed and dressed them. She could not find a scrap of new clothing in the hut to put on the little new comers; and so she removed her own clean underthings for the mother. Such blessed women are the saviours of the people.

A " Hoss Battery."-A battery of the first artillery halted one night during the seven days' harness. The first sergeant, now an honored officer of the third artillery, told me how he got up and walked toward one side of the cleaning them in general and sweeping fact that the heightened sensitiveness of Americans forces them to abstain entirely, or to use in incredible and fight, in a little clearing. About Creeds.

We are not ready yet to formulate a creed. Men have not lived long enough yet. If you do not understand the philosophy of man how can you understand the philosophy of God? If I say that God is just and never have a consciousness of justice I say nothing-it is darkness. There are one or two things that should be understood by these creed makers before they begin. Are they going to work with their backs toward the past and their faces toward the future, or with their faces toward the past and their backs toward the future? Are they also going to take into their confidence men who are devoutly scientifie? Are they going to give expression to the views of such men? Are they going to give expression to the views of men whose beliefs are btained from the manuscript of rocks? Are they going to say that the Bible is inspired, and leave men to slink through the Bible and make out its meaning as best they can? Men read about Noah's drunkenness; they read David's implicatory psalms; they read narratives of the terrible worldliness and animalism of man, and they interject with their reading a supersition of the Divine origin of Scripture and they are confused. Is this committee going to meet the exigencies of this reticent thought? Is it to be a creed that is going to subsidize the enginery of religion for religion itself? or is there to be a creed that will set forth the inner and spiritual life of man? To-day a man may come in to the communion table who yesterday was reeking with oaths and profane expletives, if he has only said his prayer this morning and said he was sorry for it. A man may be very wicked before God, and the kingdom of heaven may not have shone, even, upon the battlements of his nature, and yet such a man may come in to the communion. I may live a life like Christ, but if I denied the forensic theory of the atonement and I substituted in the place of it a Scriptural fact, I should be called to account by the churches as a dangerous man. Is there ever to be a statement of a creed that shall be founded upon a holy life? I do not know what they are going to do. know what is going to be done. I am sure that more and more as the years go on, as virtue grows purer, as it does upon the world, as philanthropy grows larger and nobler, as it does grow; as benevolence takes upon itself cosmical proportions, as the moral elements in man grow larger and larger, the old scholastic statements of ereed have got to go up. That there are to be new statements of truth in which the marrow of religion, conduct and character are to go on and develop themselves is certain. We are come to the time when we are to have the mind of Christ, and that mind of Christ shall be the only thing. Christian character will come then in the way of elective affinities between God and goodness. You cannot establish beauty and men not admire it. In churches-I don't care what the creed is-the true creed of any church is the way in which its members live, and then no weapon that is formed against it shall prosper.—Extract from a sermon of Rev H. W. Beecher.

So Long as merchant vessels, built under English protection and patronage, are allowed to draw annually from our wealth $100,000,000, as compensation for freighting our commerce, just so long will our inferiority exist. Whenever our own commerce shall be carried on in vessels owned and built by our own people, capable of being turned into ships of war when necessary, then we shall reach a point of equality with her and be prepared, when necessity shall arise, to test with her the question of superiority upon the sea. The time for active and energetic measures has now arrived, and every future year of neglect will add to our inferiority.-Extract from annual report of U. S. Secretary of Navy,

THE APOSTATES' CREED. - The following is pubished as the " Apostates' Creed, '-a hit at the unscientific belief of the day : "I believe in a chaotic nebula self-existent, evolver of beaven and earth, and in the differentiation of the original comogeneous mass, its first begotten product, which was self-formed into separate worlds, divided into land and water, self-organized into plants and animals, reproduced in like species, urther developed into higher orders, and ultimately refined, rationalized, and perfected in man. He descended from the monkey, ascended to the philosopher, and sitteth down in the rites and customs of civilization under the laws of a developing sociology. From thence he shall come again, by the disintegration of the heterogenized cosmos back to the original homogeneousness o chaos. I believe in the wholly impersonal absolute, the wholly un-catholic church, the disunion of the saints, the survival of the fittest, the persistence of force, the dispersion of the body, and attributes the national nervousness, which is manifest in the early decay of our teeth, our premature baldness, and our liability to sick headache, hay fever, nervous dyspepsia, epilepsy and certain forms of insanity, to the misguided temperance of the people. In a recent lecture in Chicago, as reported in the Times, he said :-Among Americans of the higher orders, those who live in doors, drinking is becoming a lost art; among these classes drinking customs are now historic, must be searched for, read or talked about like extinct or dying-away species. A European coming to America sees a sight that mense body of intelligent people voluntarily and habitually abstaining from alcoholic liquore. females universally so and males abstinent, if not totally abstinent. There is, perhaps, no single fact in sociology more instructive and far-reaching than this, and this is but a fraction of the moderation, not only the stronger alcohelic liquors, whether pure or impure, but also the milder wines, ales and beers, and even tea and coffee. Half of my nervous patients give up drinks. An absurd proportion give up milk, becannot; and very many drink scarcely any water, which with all its defects, is the mildest fluid that Nature gives to man.
